

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a program that performs the step of allowing an information processing
5 device included in an information processing system to receive a parameter entered for setting policies in which processes to be performed in the information processing system are defined, and the step of changing the parameter for the policies so that a policy set, which is an aggregate
10 of policies set by the parameter, better matches the control strategy of the information processing system.